PREAMBLE

Preamble

Read this first. Five minutes that set the rules for everything else.

Reading time	Who it's for	What it is	What it isn't
About 5 minutes	Men 16–25, beginners	An aesthetic self-improvement program	Medical advice

0.1 What this program is

A structured, evidence-graded program to help you improve the parts of your appearance that are actually within your control: skin, body composition, posture, grooming, style and the way you carry yourself. It's built around habits you can sustain, not hacks you'll quit in a week.

It is anti-blackpill by design. We don't rate faces, we don't sort people into tiers, and we don't believe your worth is a number. We believe most people have real room to improve, and that improving is more useful than despairing.

0.2 What this program is not

- Not medical advice. Nothing here replaces a physician, dermatologist, dentist, registered dietitian or mental health professional. Whenever a topic crosses into health, we say so and tell you who to see.
- Not a promise of results. Your starting point, genetics, consistency and circumstances all matter. We give you the best-documented method; we don't guarantee outcomes. Be wary of anyone who does.
- Not a shortcut. If you're looking for a trick that rebuilds your face in two weeks, it doesn't exist, and module 08 explains why the ones being sold online are dangerous.

0.3 How every claim is labeled

This is what makes the program different. Throughout the modules, recommendations carry one of four labels, so you always know how solid the ground is under your feet.

Label	Meaning	Example
CONSENSUS	Supported by a solid body of research and by professional guidelines.	Daily sunscreen reduces visible skin aging.
PRELIMINARY	Some encouraging studies, but small, few, or inconsistent. Reasonable to try, no guarantees.	Niacinamide for oil control.
WARNING	No good evidence, real risk, or both. We explain it so you can recognize it, not so you can try it.	Bone smashing.
MEDICAL ADVICE	Involves a diagnosis, a prescription drug or a procedure. A professional decides, not a PDF.	Hair loss treatment.

When we don't label something, it's practical advice (how to talk to a barber, how to fold a shirt) rather than a scientific claim.

0.4 How to use it

1. Read module 01 first. It sets realistic expectations and the tracking method used everywhere else.
2. Read modules 02 to 07 in order, or in the order your assessment suggested. Don't try to apply everything at once.
3. Read module 08 before you go back on TikTok. It's your filter for bad advice.
4. Run the 90-day plan (module 09). It turns everything into week-by-week actions.
5. Keep module 10 nearby for questions and for finding the right professional.

0.5 Three rules for the next 90 days

> THE RULES
>
> Consistency over intensity. A simple routine done daily beats a perfect one done when you feel like it.
>
> One change at a time. Otherwise you'll never know what's working.
>
> Measure monthly, not hourly. Photos once a month, same conditions. Not the mirror ten times a day.

0.6 Your mental health comes first

Wanting to look better is normal. But for some people, concern about appearance becomes something that takes over: hours a day spent thinking about a perceived flaw, constant mirror checking or avoiding mirrors entirely, skipping school, work or social events because of how you look. That can be body dysmorphic disorder, a recognized and treatable condition. MEDICAL ADVICE

> IF THIS SOUNDS LIKE YOU
>
> Talk to someone you trust and to your doctor. Cognitive behavioral therapy has good evidence for this. CONSENSUS
>
> If you ever have thoughts of hurting yourself, call or text 988 (Suicide & Crisis Lifeline, US), or your local emergency number. You can also go to the nearest emergency room.
>
> This program can wait. Your health can't.

0.7 If you're under 18

Everything in this program is designed to be safe for you, but a few things are different:

- You're still growing. No aggressive dieting, and no supplements beyond basic nutrition: the American Academy of Pediatrics advises against performance-enhancing supplements for minors.
- Any treatment involving a prescription (acne, hair loss, orthodontics) goes through a parent and a doctor.
- Your face and body will keep changing for several more years on their own. Judge yourself less, build habits more.
